Save our Streets Coalition (SOS) Poll

- An SOS province-wide survey conducted by Research Co. reports that 90% of British Columbians believe crimes are going unreported and 71% state lack of confidence in the justice system as the reason.
- 86% of British Columbians support harsher penalties, including jail, for repeat offenders and keeping those offenders behind bars while awaiting trial.

Save our Streets Coalition (SOS) Poll

- Correcting the course and returning safety to our communities will require that prolific criminals be incarcerated faster and for longer terms. That will only happen with the province ensuring greater fluidity in our court system. That will require more support for prosecutors and judges and/or allowing police to lay charges without prosecutorial approval.
- SOS also advocates for a complete build out of the continuum of care for those suffering from addiction and mental illnesses. Providing greater ease of access to that care would assist greatly in reducing the level of crime, violence and public disorder in B.C. communities.

Downtown Safety Matters

Public safety is essential to a vibrant and successful downtown. When people feel safe, they are more likely to visit, shop, work, and invest in the area. Visible issues such as graffiti, vandalism, broken windows and other incidents can quickly impact public perception and business confidence.

Maintaining a safe, well-cared-for environment helps ensure downtown remains welcoming for businesses, residents, and visitors.
